Wellmune® is one of the most widely researched beta-glucans, and its efficiency is also supported by several clinical studies. It contains highly purified beta-(1,3/1,6)-D-glucans obtained from baker's yeast cell walls (Saccharomyces cerevisiae) using a high-level technological process.

What are beta-glucans?

Beta-glucans are natural complex polysaccharides naturally occurring in the cell walls of bacteria, fungi, and algae. They are one of the main structures that our body recognises as a foreign body. When encountered by beta-glucans, our body activates the innate immune response to quickly neutralise a potential microbiological threat.

The Wellmune® beta-glucans are obtained from the cell walls of baker's yeast and are highly purified and branched, which results in their great efficiency. Their effectiveness was proven with several clinical studies.

How do beta-glucans function?

When swallowed, beta-glucans travel all the way down to the small intestine, where they are recognised by the immune cells named Peyer's patches present in the intestinal wall. Attachment to the receptors of these immune cells evoke the response of the innate immune system in the entire body. This is a natural process of stimulating the immune system; however, this stimulation is not caused by living microbes, but by purified and inactivated parts of their cell walls.

To achieve the best efficiency, beta-glucans have to be highly purified and properly branched (beta-1,3 glycosidic bonds and beta-1,6 glycosidic bonds). These are also the properties of the Wellmune® beta-glucans.

Whom are the BetaGlucan products intended for?

Regular consumption of BetaGlucan is recommended for people with a weak immune system that are more prone to respiratory infections, for children before they enter school or preschool, for the elderly, for those who are more prone to stress, and for athletes who undergo intense physical activity. It is recommended to take BetaGlucan especially in the colder months of the year.

Guarana is a climbing plant, native to the Amazon basin. It is best known for its reddish-brown fruit, which is about the size of a coffee bean. In Western Europe, guarana was commercialised in the 20th century when guaranin was first synthesised from guarana fruit. Guaranin is natural and unprocessed caffeine present in guarana seeds, which contain about twice the concentration of caffeine (in this case guaranin) found in coffee beans.
